MESSAGE FROM NEW ERA COLLEGE

Mr Clement Didimalang

Director of Academic Affairs

Dear Graduates

Today marks an important milestone in your live careers. You are graduating from your various programs of study. On behalf of the College Management and the rest of New Era College Community, I would like to commend and congratulate you and your families for your achievements. Many of you had to live very far from your loved ones to pursue your studies and now you are receiving an award that is a reward for your years of hard work. Well done! This award should serve as a master key to open a diversity of doors that you are yet to find in your career paths.

Those of you who are working may have noted that what school taught you and what you have to do may be different. As you gain more experience at what you do, you will realise that the knowledge and skills you acquired at school and from your work experience become less and less relevant probably because of changes in technology and ways of doing things. This is a sign that no institution can give you knowledge and skills needed to fulfil the demands of your whole life career. The demands of life change and render old knowledge and skills obsolete. In fact, many graduates from technical fields often find out that the tools they have to use in their fields are different from those that they used at school despite schools' efforts to keep and use "state of the art technologies".

You will also soon realised that although you and your classmates went through the same programs, your levels of success at what you do may be different. The reality is that the knowledge and skills that you gain may be the same but your attitudes towards learning and life in general are different. It is your individual differences that will determine which doors you can open with your master key. This is calling for you as individuals to reflect upon yourself and ask what it is about you that will make your key work better or not at all. Your new challenge is to keep abreast with the changing demands of life by acquiring more relevant Attitudes, Skills, and Knowledge (A.S.K).

To families of the graduating class, I would like to congratulate you for raising these graduands. Your support from the early years to now and the future will continue to be very relevant to these young people as they step into their various future endeavours. These are the people on whom the nation places its future hopes. Your guidance and encouragement for them must continue for life.

Finally let me wish you all graduating class success in all that you do and remind you that if you do not get employed by anyone, A.S.K about self-employment! The college will soon offer a course in Entrepreneurship. You are welcome to come and find out about this and other programs of higher learning that are now available at New Era College. Congratulations!

Clement Didimalang

Director, Academic Affairs

 that they should play a role for their country.
